History Day #4: Annotated Bibliography

9/11 Commission. The 9/11 Commission Report. Print. Washington, D.C.: United States Government, July 26, 2004

The 9/11 Commission has interviewed over 1,200 people in 10 countries, and reviewed over 2 ½ million pages of documents, including some closely guarded classified national security documents. This was important to my project because it gave detailed information about the hijackers, and how they boarded Flight 93.

History Channel Staff. Flight 93. Website. A+E Networks, 2010

The History Channel provides confirmed information about various historical events in a variety of ways, including online. This source helped me develop my project because it helped provide a summary of the events that occurred on Flight 93, and provided a number of facts I used in my project.

National Park Service Staff. Flight 93 National Memorial, Pennsylvania. Website. NPS.

The National Park Service is a federal service that manages all monuments, memorials, and national parks across the US. This helped my project because this website provided me with a summary of the demographics of Flight 93, and gave a detailed description of the crash site, and its location.

Greengrass, Paul. United 93. Documentary. Universal Studios, April 26, 2006

The documentary United 93 reenacts the events that occurred inside the hijacked UA93, during the duration of the hijacking, up until the moment the plane crashed into a field in Pennsylvania. This source helped me work on my “Hijacking” section of my project, because it presented the events that occurred inside UA93.

Markle, Peter. Flight 93. Documentary. Universal Studios, January 30, 2006

This documentary reenacts the events that occurred on UA93, and goes into detail on how the passengers revolted against the terrorists. This source helped me with my “Passenger Revolt” section in my website, because it gave all of the actions the passengers too in chronological order.

Wald, Matthew. Details Emerge on Flight 93. Newspaper Article. Washington DC.: New York Times, July 22, 2004

This newspaper article provides information released by the FAA and other such companies about the events that occurred on UA93, specifically the terrorists. It helped me with my project because it provided detailed information into who the terrorists were, and their dialogue.

Taglabue, Victoria. Honor Flight 93. Website. Washington D.C.: NPF, 2011

This website gave the names of the passengers and crew on UA93, and had multiple fast facts I used in my project, including facts about the memorial. This helped me develop my “Boarding” and “Fun Facts” sections of my project

Google staff. Flight 93 Images. Digital images. Google Corporation

This website helped me develop my images for my entire project. It had a variety of images from different sources on the internet, and I got to choose the images from the most credible sources, such as those that end in “.edu” and “.org”.
